CATS FOR COMPANY.

A WATCHMAN HAS TWENTY-THREE AND HE LIKES THEM.

A Feline Crowd That is Well Cared For, Visiting a New York Night Watchman Who Would Be Lonely but for His Devoted and Loving Pets.

Where, where? Where, where? It was such a whistle as the Pied Piper of Hamelin may have given when he called the rats from the famous old city to a watery grave to the river Weser. But instead of rats there came from a little shanty in Alderman Duffy's coal yard at the foot of East Twenty-sixth street the queerest colony of cats to be found perhaps in Christendom. They gathered about the watchman of the yard, Charles Melville, a stout thick set man with bristling brown mustache, who walked with a slight limp and is familiarly known as "Doc," because of his veterinary skill, in answer to his whistle.

"Great family, ain't it?" said the watchman after a moment's pause, during which he counted them to see if the cats were all there. "Ain't another like it in the city. The black one's Nig. He's 3 years old, and the most intelligent. Larry, the bundle, is the same age, and is the biggest of the lot. That black and white small sized cat is Cinders. Khankers, over there, is black and white too. She's the dead end of her mother, is Cinders. Most people can't tell them apart. That stout looking old woman over there is Minnie. She is 8 years old, being the oldest of all, and the grandmother of most of the babies. The lively little lady with the blue liver colored hair is Ginger. They think they are going to get something to eat. See how disappointed they look when they find they ain't."

"Nothing today," he said sharply. "Trot back the gentleman has seen you."

The twenty-three cats were for a moment irresolute. Then they blinked their eyes as if to wipe away the tears, and turned about and went with drooping tails and bent heads into the shanty whence they came. The watchman followed, leading the regatta to the shed which was built in the corner of the yard. It was not more than a 12 ft. square and as many high, and was built of old boards. It stood at the entrance to the yard. At the street end was a door, in the bottom of which was cut a hole about three inches square. Hanging over this little hole was a flap of wood suspended from a piece of leather. Two windows lit up the interior of the shed. On one side was a raised bank, where the watchman sleeps and on the other, under the windows, was a long shelf. Coils of rope, shovels, pail axes, tools, odds and ends of iron, pulleys and blocks, lanterns and empty boxes littered up the rest of the interior.

Upon the bank, shelf and floor and in nooks and corners the cats were making themselves perfectly at home. The watchman picked up a small piece of meat from a closet and began to chop it up. Instantly the cats were all attention and watched him intently. When he threw down what he had cut each cat picked up a piece and took it off to a corner to eat it. There was no scrambling or fighting save among the kittens.

"I keep the cats for company," said their master. "Most of them I have raised from kittens which friends gave me. I used to have a tribe of them, but a good many died of distemper. There used to be so many of them that when I went through the yard at night with a lantern I was almost afraid of stepping on them. You can't teach them any tricks except to jump over sticks and through your hands and to come when you call and to stick to you like a brother. A dog has got more intelligence. A cat lives about twelve years. The talk about their having nine lives is rot. They are awfully delicate creatures and catch the distemper very easily. You mustn't overfeed them. I don't believe in giving them milk; it's too heating. A little meat once a day is all they need. They catch rats and mice enough to keep them from being hungry. Be kind to them. Bob Ingersoll says a kind word to a dumb animal is better than a kick."

"Some of my cats are great fighters. Minnie is a perfect John L. Sullivan. She will tackle anything in the shape of a dog that comes along. A big bull terrier chased Cinders the other day. It was great to see Minnie go to her aid. Those two cats got that dog down and clawed him until he howled. When they let him up he had hardly any hair on him. He put his tail between his legs and ran away as if the old boy was after him. When a cat fights, you know, he lies on his back and paws with his hind feet. Wherever the claws strike the fur flies."

"If a strange cat comes around they will chase him away if they don't like him. If they think he is a pretty good fellow they will bring him in here when I call them to feed. Cinders has almost turned Protestant through kindness. She runs off to the female training school up the street and the nuns make a great time over her and feed her. I have forbid her going there, but she won't pay any attention to my orders." Then Melville went on to tell what a comfort the cats were to him the long winter nights. When he reads in his little home the cats climb on the bench where the lamp stands and sit there, on his shoulder and about the arms of his chair for hours, quiet as lambs.—New York Press.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has rendered a decision in the case of the Board of Trade of Chattanooga against the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railway Company and others. The complainant alleged that rates on traffic from New York and other Atlantic seaboard points to Chattanooga are unreasonable in themselves and relatively as compared with rates to Memphis and Nashville, and that rates on such traffic are greater for the shorter distance to Chattanooga than for the longer distance over the same line and in the same direction to Memphis and Nashville. The Commission held that defendants were justified by the existence of water competition, the controlling force, in charging less on such traffic for the longer distance to Memphis, but that no such competition exists for such traffic to Nashville and a greater charge for the transportation of like kind of property from seaboard points for the shorter distance through Chattanooga to Nashville, is in violation of the fourth section of the Act to regulate commerce. Defendants were ordered to cease and desist from making greater charges to Chattanooga than to Nashville, but that no such competition exists for such traffic to Nashville and a greater charge for the transportation of like kind of property from seaboard points for the shorter distance through Chattanooga to Nashville, is in violation of the fourth section of the Act to regulate commerce. Defendants were ordered to cease and desist from making greater charges to Chattanooga than to Nashville, but that no such competition exists for such traffic to Nashville and a greater charge for the transportation of like kind of property from seaboard points for the shorter distance through Chattanooga to Nashville, is in violation of the fourth section of the Act to regulate commerce.

SILVER THE GREAT ISSUE.

The silver question will not down. It is the all-absorbing subject at Washington, and is discussed more than the tariff or any other National issue. The silver men are so strong that Cleveland is said to have reached the conclusion that it will be best to compromise on the restoration of the Bland Act of 1876. It is believed that many free coinage men will favor the repeal of the Sherman Act of 1890 authorizing the purchase of silver bullion if the Bland Act is restored with the proviso that the Secretary of the Treasury shall coin the maximum of $4,000,000 per month instead of the minimum of $2,000,000 a month as heretofore. While there is a demand for more money from all parts of the country to meet the requirements of commerce, and a bill is before Congress to issue bonds to make up the deficiency in the Treasury, there is over 70,000,000 ounces of bullion stored in the Treasury. This bullion should be coined and put in circulation for the payment of pensions or other Government obligations. The agitation of the silver question in the West and South is having a good effect on Congress. A Presidential candidate, nominated by a party which is not yet a year old, and one of whose cardinal principles is free coinage, will receive the electoral votes of five States tomorrow. This is convincing proof of the great interest which the people are taking in the silver issue, and it alarms the goldbug politicians of the old parties, who see that unless there is legislation favorable to silver, the Populists will sweep the country at the next general election.

THE CONSTITUTIONALITY OF THE LEGISLATURE.

Hon. Thomas Wren and Hon. M. S. Bonfield are in Reno on their way to Carson. When asked their opinion in regard to the constitutionality of the Legislature, Mr. Wren said there is no doubt of the legality of the Legislature whether the new apportionment Act is constitutional or not. He believes the apportionment Act of 1891 comes as near complying with the requirements of the Constitution as any that has been passed since the State was admitted into the Union. The members of the Legislature elected last November are the legal representatives of the people. They are each and all entitled to seats and if there is a quorum of members under the old apportionment bill present when the Legislature convenes there can be no question as to the legality of the Legislature whether the new apportionment Act is constitutional or not. Vacancies might exist under the old apportionment bill, but that is not the fault of the members elected.

Mr. Bonfield fully agreed with Mr. Wren. He said each House is the exclusive judge of the election and qualification of its members. The members being legally elected are the sole judges of whether there are vacancies or not. If the new act is unconstitutional if there are a sufficient number of members in each House to constitute a quorum under the old act, they can transact business, or if they deem it advisable provide for increasing their numbers to the limit allowed by the old act. The Constitution makes them sole judges in the case and no other department of the Government has authority to interfere. The Courts will take judicial notice of the legal existence of the Legislature, as they do of the State officers.

Both gentlemen agreed that the present apportionment Act was doubtless passed in the interest of economy and was the best that could have been done under the circumstances.

Congressional. WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The House engaged the entire day in the consideration of the District of Columbia Appropriation bill and adjourned without disposing of it.

The bill granting additional duties upon the marine hospital service was taken up and the formal amendments agreed to. This brought the Senate to the amendment which empowers the President to suspend (for such time as he shall deem necessary) immigration from countries or places where cholera or yellow fever exists.

After some interchanges of views an agreement was reached that the special order as to the bill on the subject of quarantine and immigration be continued till Monday and the consideration of the Anti-Option bill to be resumed on Tuesday.

Adjourned. Bloodshed Likely. POMONA, Cal., Jan. 7.—There is likely to be bloodshed on section 36, township 1, in Los Angeles county. The State of California sold land to settlers who have improved it to the value of about $200,000. Recently the Secretary of the Interior decided that the State never owned that section and received other land in lieu thereof. Under this decision the parties from Los Angeles are trying to take possession. This morning the settlers drove out parties away, who say they will return strong enough to take and hold possession and the settlers declare they shall not peacefully do so.

San Francisco Races. SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—The Fall meeting of the Pacific Blood Horse Association closed to-day. The weather was clear and cold and the track fast. Half mile dash—Iris, filly, won, Gipsy Girl second, Charming third. Time 0:48. Seven furlongs—Atlas won, Santa Fe second, Mabel M third. Time 1:30. One mile and 50 yards—Contessa won, Sheridan second, Peasodder and Little Esperanza tied for third place. Time 1:45. Five furlongs—St. Croix won, Stoneman second, Charger third. Time 1:01. Five furlongs—Gypsie won, Jennie Mintzer second, Little Tough third. Time 1:02.

Reduced Railroad Rates. LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7.—The Santa Fe got out its retaliatory reduced new freight rates to-day. On wine, beans, canned goods and boxes, 50 cents; brandy 60 cents in carload lots, from all points in Southern California on the railroad to all points on the Santa Fe east of the 97th meridian, which includes St. Joseph, Kansas City and St. Louis, Chicago and intermediate points. This goes into effect January 10th. This rate is a 50 per cent reduction, and on an average of 33 per cent lower than the Southern Pacific reduced rates to Chicago.

The Kansas Legislature. TOPEKA, Jan. 7.—It is said that the Populists intend to try to have all persons whose seats are contested excluded from the floor of the House pending the decision in their cases. If they can do this they will have control and organization. This will not be submitted to by the Republicans and now it seems probable that there will be a split and the parties separate and each House set up for itself.

The Supreme Court this afternoon decided the Coffey county contest in favor of the Republicans. A Bogue Treasure Field. BOWEN CITY, Jan. 7.—Prof. Platt Bryno, a diamond expert from Melbourne, Australia, who about ten days ago was sent to the diamond mines by Hon. Alex. S. Robertson of the Idaho Legislature, has returned a report and the rush to the bogue treasure field has almost entirely ceased. Bryno says he found several deposits of small sapphires and rubies and a number of silicon diamonds. These are of small commercial value, and there is but very little demand for them.

Violates No Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—In response to the Senate resolution relative to the possible violations of the treaty obligations under the pending Chandler suspension bill, the President to-day transmitted to the Senate the reply to the Secretary of State. The Secretary says he was not aware of any treaty which specifically purports to restrict the right of this Government to control the immigration into the United States. He is of the opinion that the bill is not in violation of any treaty into which the United States has entered.

Blaine Has a Set Back. WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Blaine is worse to-night. Dr. Johnston visited him about 9:30 o'clock to-night and found the patient had undergone no unfavorable change and was weaker than for several days. In reply to an inquiry, the doctor said at present he was unable to tell the extent of the set back, but hardly anticipated the change with seriousness to-night.

A Populist to be Inaugurated. TOPEKA, Jan. 7.—L. D. Lowellyn, the Populist Governor-elect of Kansas, will be inaugurated on Monday. Chairman Bridgman of the Populist State Central Committee, will be master of ceremonies. A reception will be held at the State House in the evening. There will be no inaugural ball.

Difficult to Get a Jury. CHESTNUT, Wyo., Jan. 7.—It will probably take five and maybe six weeks to secure a jury in the cattleman's case. So far eighty-five talesmen have been examined and forty more summoned.

Another Version of the Ayre Murder Case.

A CLEVER CHINESE SCHEME.

Another Version of the Ayre Murder.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 7.—There is a sudden turn in the case of the murder of Miss E. O. Ayre to-day. The story which the Bee has unearthed to-day is probably the most sensational of all the features of the now celebrated case. An officer of the law gives the basis of the story, and a search by Bee reporters seems to confirm the entire truth of this version.

Miss E. O. Ayre was murdered at Brighton Station between the hours of 12 o'clock midnight and 2 o'clock on the morning of December 29th. The murderous work was done by a Swede, Miss Ayre was surprised by the entrance of a Swede about the hours named. As she was about to utter a cry she was dealt a heavy blow in the mouth which prostrated her to the floor and knocked out several of her teeth. The Swede, with a blunt instrument, struck her over the head, smothering in her skull and smothering her voice forever. Miss Ayre's watchdog began barking furiously as the assault was being made and the Swede dispatched the animal in the same manner. A "slow match" was then lit and it was not long before the house was in flames, giving the firebug, however, ample time to escape.

Whether any money was secured from the house or from some person for the crime is not absolutely known, but it is known that a Swede came into Sacramento the morning of the murder with his pockets full of money and proceeded to make a tour of the down town resorts. He entered a saloon in which Robert Goods, the well-known ex-sheriff, is barkeeper and after consuming a quantity of liquor spoke boastfully of his terrible deed. Goods heard a part of the remarks, but attached no importance to them as the murder was not then known. As soon as the facts of the tragedy became known Constable Frank Swift was told about the circumstances and set out at once to Brighton and to the ranch where it was said the Swede worked, but he was unsuccessful as the Swede had taken flight at the station which followed the murder. "I've got lots of stuff to-day," he is alleged to have said to one of his companions after the murder, "and I am going to get out of this town as quick as I can."

A Clever Chinese Scheme Discovered.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7.—A clever scheme of the Chinese to evade the Chinese registration act was discovered by a Government detective in this city. The act requires the Chinese to have their pictures taken and file them at the office of the Internal Revenue Collector. A Philadelphia Chinaman is taking lessons in photography and in the art of using a preparation that will cause photographs to grow dim and fade in a year. When the regulation act goes into force next May the Chinese of Philadelphia will have an artist countryman photograph them and after applying the fading preparation to the picture it will be filed with Collector Brooks. Within a year the picture will be so dim that it will be almost unrecognizable and Collector Brooks will be unable to tell whether that before him is the original of the photograph or a recent importation from China. It is said the scheme has been transmitted to the Chinese in all the large cities of the country and photography is being assiduously studied by the oriental inhabitants.

Rather Dubious for Silver.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The House Committee on Banking and Currency discussed this afternoon the bill to increase the circulation of the national banks and to repeal the silver purchase section of the Sherman act.

Townsend of Colorado offered an amendment in the shape of the Stewart free coinage bill which was almost unanimously rejected.

Brooks of Pennsylvania moved the postponing of the consideration of repealing the section until the conclusion of the International Monetary Conference. This proposition was also rejected.

The proposition of the State of Arkansas to amend section four by providing for the coinage of all silver bullion now in the Treasury was reached but not voted on. The committee adjourned till Monday, when it is expected some definite action on the bill will be taken.

Union Men Discharged.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 7.—Last evening General Agent Perry of the Pennsylvania road called twenty union freight handlers into his office, and in the plainest terms told them they could not be loyal to both and it was for them to say whether they were ready to give in their allegiance to the company which paid them wages or to the union. Fifteen stepped to the company's side and five who stood by the union were paid off and discharged on the spot. Union men say this movement by the Pennsylvania is the opening to united action by all roads in the country in anticipation of trouble during the World's Fair.

Suits Against Brooklyn Officials.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 7.—A suit has been brought against a number of city officials charged with fraud. The men are all indicted under separate counts. Some are charged with wrongfully taking and abetting another in wrongfully obtaining money from the city of Brooklyn, others with falsifying auditing claims against the city, and still others with falsifying the payment of unjust bills and for putting in fraudulent claims.

Nevada Land Surveys Approved.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Commissioner Stone of the General Land Office to-day approved the surveys of twenty-six out of thirty townships embraced in what is known as the "Mason surveys" in Nevada.

ENGLISH FOLKS AT THE SEASIDE.

Visiting for Pleasure They Waste No Time in Going to Bed.

A man charged with begging once declared that he had not been in bed for thirteen years; he took his rest in doorways and passages. This is not a bad record, but many of the homeless class could probably beat it. Certainly there are thousands—not only in England, but all over the world—to whom such a luxury as a bed is unknown; unfortunately are obliged to lay their heads in the oddest places imaginable to prevent their being rudely awakened by the police.

A sad never-do-well told the writer that this was his principal thought for more days than he could count. Where should he sleep that night? And he had a theory that but for having this object constantly in view as he tramped over the monotonous pavements of London he must have lost his reason. He laughed himself in after days when he thought of some of his experiences at freezing out.

Even he, however, never slept in a stream, which was what some thirty persons of both sexes did at Bude-Pesth a few years back. The water, which was warm, flowed from a mill, and the vagrants got into it and converted a number of stones into temporary pillows.

Even people with homes could tell some strange stories on this head. Of course in some countries beds are unknown. The Japanese, for example, sleep on the floor muffled in a great wadded coat and with a block of wood for a pillow. But, confining ourselves to England, just talk to the dwellers in the slums on this subject. Why, going to bed there during the summer months is positively torturing. Many places swarm with vermin, and consequently those who live in them find it more comfortable to sleep anywhere rather than in the proper place—even on the doorstep.

The manager of the Isle of Man hotel remarked a few months ago that "visitors" never went to bed. His servants are often asked to provide breakfasts at 8 or 4 a. m. Certainly the streets of Douglas are pretty lively any time during the season.

A gentleman is fond of relating that one night a select party settled not far from his bedroom window and created the most discordant din imaginable. He bore it with exemplary patience for about five hours, and then, dressing himself, he went out and mildly expostulated, saying he wanted some sleep.

"Sleep!" roared one of the gang, blowing a terrific blast on a toy trumpet; "then what did you come to the Isle of Man for?"

They say at Blackpool, too, that if you arrive at any hour of the day or night you are just in time for something or other. The story goes that early one morning a dance was in progress on one of the piers, when a shipwrecked sailor, who had been drifting about on a spar and had fortunately "landed" on the girders below, crawled up the steps. The M. C. came forward—they are never surprised at Blackpool—smiled, bowed and said: "Pleased to see you, sir. Can I find you a partner?"—Cassell's Journal.

Ahab, king of Israel, was wounded by an arrow in a battle at Ramoth Gilead, and "about the time of the sun going down he died."

The costumes for the grand skating carnival have arrived and were on display at the rink last evening. There are some very fancy gowns among them and as they are being selected from very rapidly those wishing to secure costumes should attend to it immediately. From present indications, standing room will be at a premium on the night of the carnival. It is understood that a large number of Wadsworths will be in attendance.

AT HAND

In a dangerous emergency, AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is prompt to act and sure to cure. A case taken on the first symptoms of Croup or Bronchitis, checks further progress of these complaints. It softens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membrane, and induces sleep. As a remedy for colds, coughs, loss of voice, la grippe, pneumonia, and even consumption, in its early stages,

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

excels all similar preparations. It is endorsed by leading physicians, is agreeable to the taste, does not interfere with digestion, and needs to be taken usually in small doses. "From repeated tests in my own family, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has proved itself a very efficient remedy for colds, coughs, and the various disorders of the throat and lungs."—A. W. Bartlett, Pittsfield, N. H. "For the last 30 years I have been taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for lung troubles, and am assured that its use has

SKETCHES FROM IRRIGATED SECTIONS.

The Only Remedy for Nevada.

The Irrigation Age for January contains an interesting article in Nevada from the editor, William E. Smyth. He points out the possibilities of this State by referring to that Oasis of the Desert, Humboldt Station on the C. P. & N. R., which furnishes convincing proof that irrigation can make this barren State the home of prosperous thousands, that it can give tangible value to a wilderness of land now worthless, that it can attract money and men, that it can lay the foundation for a commercial, political and social development entirely worth our age and race.

THE REMEDY SUGGESTED.

The only remedy for the existing state of affairs in Nevada is for the people to learn a lesson from the broncho and buck their heartless riders out of the saddle. It is not likely that this will soon be done, but it is certain that Nevada can never become a worthy American commonwealth without new and able leaders—not then unless the people are ready to assert their power. But assuming—and it requires an agile imagination—that they would do this to-morrow, what then is the process by which Nevada can be gradually lifted to the rank of surrounding States in the matter of irrigation and agriculture, and the benefits that go with them? First, let her people ascertain the amount of the available water supply and the extent of the irrigable lands. These things are known now only approximately. Existing statistics are of little value. Nevada, then, must first explore herself. After learning the extent and nature of her land and water resources, and the class of projects that may be most easily and quickly brought to fruition—whether it be the use of surface streams, artesian wells or storage reservoirs—then let the State overhaul her water laws and, especially, her methods of administering them. Let her do as Wyoming did—examine her every existing "right," compel appropriators to make a beneficial use of the water, or give it to somebody who will, and see to it that genuine cultivators of the soil get the water hereafter and that they use it not lavishly, but justly. When these things have been done the way is prepared for settlers and for enterprise.

The State might go further and establish an immigration bureau to advertise her advantages. She is sadly in need of that kind of advertising. There is not the slightest doubt in my mind that popular self-assertion, followed by a wise and aggressive irrigation policy, would almost instantly lift Nevada out of the gutter. But I have no idea that this thing will come at an early date. It may not come until the pressure of settlement forces the reclamation of all the good lands in the temperate zone, or until some mighty revolution of politics overturns existing institutions. But when it does come, be that soon or late, Nevada will lift her head proudly among the great States of the Union, for she has all the raw materials of a diversified and wealth-producing industrial life. In speaking thus plainly of the Nevada that ought to be, I am not malicious nor cruel, but far more kind than the man who most eloquently defends the Nevada that is. I have faith in her, and the other man has not.

THE FISH LAW.

It is Alleged That It Has the Opposite Effect to What Its Framers Intended.

The fish law of Nevada, as it stands upon the statutes to-day, is an absurdity and a farce. It has no merits and works just opposite to what the law makers intended it should work. It is a protection to the fish and there is no justice in it to the fish or the people who fish for a livelihood or for pleasure. More than one of the legislators of the fifteenth session informed the writer that the Legislature was lobbied in the interest of the present law by men who made many misrepresentations to accomplish their ends. There were few men in the fifteenth session of the Nevada Legislature who had enough practical knowledge of the matter to vote intelligently upon the measure when it came before them for consideration.

The present law does not protect the fish, was not made to protect the fish, but was made in the interest of half a dozen so-called sportsmen of the upper Truckee who had a "pull." The "pull" was strong enough to drag Fish Commissioner Mills into the fight, and to make him trade everything in the country round for the nonexistent law which does not protect.

Fish Commissioner Mills was asked to come to Wadsworth and make an investigation. He was offered every available means to enable him to look into the matter thoroughly and judge for himself. If the evidence offered did not convince him of its error, no opposition would be offered to any measure he might suggest or propose. Commissioner Mills would not accept the invitation offered in the name of right and justice. He could sit in his chair at Carson and accept the testimony offered by men who did not see Pyramid or Mud Lake on an average of once a year, and then only a day at a time. There is no justice in legislation which is prompted by such means. There is no fairness in a decision reached from the testimony of one side, and that side sadly lacking in practical knowledge and experience. We court a fair and impartial trial, and this being granted, we are willing to abide by the decision.—Wadsworth Dispatch.

Deserving the Court.

When arraigned to plead, E. H. S. Mulder stated to the court that he had no means to employ an attorney, and on this representation Judge Rusk appointed Mr. Woodburn to defend him at the equity's expense. Now Mulder either deceived the court or was practicing his old game of deception, for yesterday he gave Mr. Woodburn a check for $300 on the sister in Amsterdam. If the check is good, Mulder can be sent to jail for a certain number of days and fined $500 for contempt of court. Judge Rusk should make an example of the scoundrel.—Tribune.

STEWART'S PLEA FOR SILVER.

The Silver Cause A Struggle for Liberty.

Following are a few extracts from Senator Stewart's plea for silver in the United States Senate a few days ago, which have been telegraphed to this coast:

He said that half the gold produced came from silver mines and that the entire output of gold was annually used in the arts. The repeal of the Act would so cripple silver mining as to cut off half the supply of gold. The arts would then rapidly absorb the coin gold and the contraction would be ruinous.

Every attempt to buy gold from Europe by selling wheat and cotton cheaper than they could be obtained elsewhere, would, he declared, be met with sales of our securities, of which Europe held $5,000,000,000. The price of our commodities would be ruinously low before we could get out of debt to Europe and make a contest on equal terms. The gold advocates admitted that there was not gold enough but preferred their profits on the rise of gold to honest money and financial prosperity.

The people at the last election, Stewart said, voted for no principle but change. The Republicans would not agree to a change, while the Democrats promised to change the tariff scheduled. The voters decided that no change could be for the worse and that any change might be beneficial. Over 1,000,000 voters, without hope of success, protested by voting for Weaver. Others stayed at home in apathy or disgust at being voted to defeat Harrison and elect Cleveland. If the Democratic party would renounce silver and give relief its lease of power would be indefinite, but if it failed and the corner on gold was maintained, both the old parties would be overwhelmed at the next election. The demand for the repeal of the Act of 1890 was to degrade silver, destroy its market and prevent its reclamation.

"The silver cause," continued Stewart, "is a struggle for liberty against the usurpation of the gold kings. The success of the gold combination means feudal lords and dependent gentry."

The success of the gold party, he believed, had been achieved by a cunning which was no more justifiable than brute force. The people would first try the force of the ballot against this cunning and if that failed the gold kings must take warning. Accusations of cunning were always in danger from physical force. It was the part of wisdom to do justice, obtain a verdict by fair means and avoid dangerous discontent.

LOVELOCK NOTES.

Items of Interest From the New Era.

Humboldt's Commissioners will receive $25 a month from January 1st, which is a reduction of fifty per cent. from the salary heretofore allowed.

Cattle feeding on the Big Meadows are improving rapidly. A well posted cattleman stated that this has been the most favorable season of many years.

A Soldier, one of our prominent mining men, departs to-morrow for New York State, expecting to remain a couple of months. When he returns, active work will be commenced on the Victor mine in Trinity District, of which we wrote in one of the issues of the New Era. This mine is an immense silver proposition, which will give employment to many miners. The property is from two to three miles off the railroad.

The richness of the placers of American Canyon are in no wise better exemplified than by the many departures of Chinese from the claims via Lovelock to their homes in China, each preparing before departure, a return certificate. Lee Chung, of the firm of Quong, Hop, Chung, merchants of American Canyon, was the last to leave, procuring his return papers from Justice Brown. These papers cost him the way from $50 to $200, which includes the services of a lawyer or notary, the cost of a photograph and sundry other expenses. But this heavy tax does not deter the prosperous merchants out of Lovelock making an occasional visit to the Celestial Kingdom.

"HANDSOME"

The Sunderland Mascot Injured by Being Run Over by a Dray.

Day before yesterday a sad accident happened to "Handsome," the beautiful and high-spirited looking dog adopted over a year ago by the clerks of John Sunderland's clothing store. "Handsome" got his foot run over by the wheel of a passing dray, and there has been sorrow among his friends ever since. The foot was so badly crushed that he had to be removed on a stretcher to an improvised hospital made out of a borrowed blanket, which was placed in the rear of Sunderland's store. Here his wounds are faithfully attended to night and day by Bob Morrow and Sam Mesinger, who take turns watching by the sufferer's pain-disturbed pillow, now administering a hypodermic injection of opium oil to ease "Handsome's" distress, and again bathing the fevered brow with spirits of turpentine.

A late bulletin issued as the JOURNAL is going to press this morning states that the sufferer's pulse is regular and that unless blood poisoning sets in he will get along all right.

"Handsome," notwithstanding his name, is the homeliest looking canine that ever set foot in Reno, but owing to a sweet and engaging disposition has so ingratiated himself in the affections of the people on the block that great interest is felt in his condition.

Bitten by Dog.

Yesterday after an Jack O'Brien the 13-year-old son of Jack O'Brien was playing in the yard of their home in the northern part of town he was set upon by a shepherd dog belonging to Dave Miller and badly bitten. A piece of flesh the size of half a dollar was cut out of the boy's lower lip, and he received also a severe bite in the hand.

The dog was subsequently killed by its owner. It had never before shown a disposition to bite anyone and its sudden vicious attack is believed to have been due to the fact that other boys have been in the habit of teasing it lately.

ALONG THE AMAZON.
WHERE RAIN COMES DOWN IN TERRIFIC CROUDBURSTS.

For Months the Country is Submerged by Water and All Kinds of Animals Are Driven to the Highlands and Tree Tops—A Tropical Deluge.

The worst inundations of Louisiana and eastern Arkansas are but spring freshets compared with the monster floods that visit the Amazon valley every year with a regularity equaled only by astronomical events and tax collections.

The rainfall of northern Brazil is about three times that of the wettest counties of Oregon, and in midsummer the thunder showers that drench the woods every afternoon resemble a daily cloudburst. On the Northern Pacific no other world would be applied to an atmosphere of water, darkening the air like a London winter fog for hours together, and swamping a house, if the roof should leak, through an aperture of a few square inches.

Rains of that sort are apt to occur day after day for a series of weeks, and their effect on the lowlands can only be imperfectly indicated by the fact that the Amazon river drains an area of more than 2,000,000 square miles. The Mississippi, too, drains half the eastern slope of a country larger than Brazil, but its largest tributaries are dwarfed by the three great tributaries of the South American father of waters.

Not such flowing lakes as the Rio Negro and the Madeira, but the Purus, the Yavari, the Uru, the Jirou, the Papayo and dozens of other streams rarely mentioned on this side of the isthmus enter the main river through a delta miles in width and deep enough for the largest river steamers of the St. Lawrence.

About the middle of summer these streams begin to rise, those from the southwest first, those from the northwest and north a few weeks later, and a fortnight after the arrival of the second supplement the valley of the Amazon, the "wild river," as the early colonists called the Amazon, becomes a paradise of swampy lowlands. The tapers, the peccari, the fish eaters celebrate the picnic season of their summer life, and herds of wild deer begin their westward exodus. Near Monte Beira, in the province (now state) of Mato Grosso, the woods in midsummer get full of game, as a hundred years ago the foot-hills of the southern Alleghenies swarmed with wild pigeons when the forests of the north were buried in snow.

A more than usually sudden rise of the flood cuts off many of these fugitives, who are thus reduced to the alternative of making for the highest accessible ground, farther east, till every knoll becomes a hill of refuge, crowded with timid brutes, whose survival depends on their escape from the giant cats and dogs who may approach their stronghold by swimming. If the water should have submerged too large a portion of the continent's forest.

About two months after the beginning of the rainy season the deluge of the lowlands reaches its maximum. Thousands of square miles are submerged so effectively that canoes can be paddled through forests apparently free from underbrush, since only the taller trees, with their network of climbing vines, rise like islands above the surging waters. The swollen rivers have found new currents, and broad, gurgling streams twist and eddy through the leafy wilderness, tearing off whole groups of trees, with all their roots, but making amends by depositing hillocks of driftwood, which soon get covered with tufts of new vegetation.

The pressure of the surging flood against these mounds of alluvium soon becomes enormous, but the deep rooted stems of the adansonia and the canoche tree may resist till new deposits of driftwood consolidate a number of mounds, thus forming good sized islands with a down stream base of perhaps half a mile, but a narrow head deflecting the current left and right, like the wedge shaped front of a stout bridge pier. At the time of their incipency these new islands may be tenanted only by river lizards, but necessity is the mother of successful exploration as well as of invention, and a week after their birth the driftwood island swarms with animal refugees, hogs, deer and caymans, joining each other in their struggle for a base of operations, thus often getting noisy enough to attract the prowling carnivores.

THE USE OF DRUGS.
Very few housekeepers can realize the nutritive value of cream, and understand its superiority to any other solid fats in permitting the gastric juice to mix with it in the most perfect manner and in this way aiding and hastening digestion.

It is invaluable in the case of invalids, for it serves as a nutriment in a very available form. It is superior to butter because it contains more volatile oil than butter made from it. It is frequently ordered by physicians for persons consumptively inclined, for those with feeble digestion, for aged persons, and for those who suffer from impaired circulation, cold feet, and who feel chilly from want of nutriment.

No other article of food gives such satisfactory results. It is, however, as expensive in bulk as cream. On a farm, however, it can be had in its natural state, and it can be used in dozens of ways, with fresh or stewed fruits, as an accompaniment to cake, puddings, and the like while cream can be drunk nearly as freely as milk. For use in whipping it should be thick and sweet, while for drinking it can be used after the milk has stood, at the most, but a few hours over night.

An Unexpected "Water Scene." The Installation "Hagerty Amateur Dramatic Society" recently introduced a striking bit of realism into their skillful rendition of "Engaged and Jilted." It will be remembered that when the heroine faints and falls gracefully upon the stage the awkward comu servant is required to seize a large pitcher from a small table standing near R. E. and boldly invert it over the prostrate lady, exclaiming as she does so, "Oh, heavens! There's not a drop of water in the place!"

This is a highly humorous effect in its way, but its side-splitting features were greatly intensified the other evening when, through some oversight, the pitcher was half full of water when it was placed on the table.

The proper cue was given. The comic servant grabbed the pitcher and fairly deluged the unexpected heroine. She sprang and gasped for breath, and waved her arms wildly in the air, and utterly forgot to wait for the hero's arrival before recovering from her "faint."

"Goodwill! Km also swim!" called out a small boy in the gallery, and then the applause was simply deafening.
